THE FLOOD IN THE PATAPSCO.

light of to-day gave them an opportunity to take a further account of the losses.

About half-past nine o'clock yesterday morning the alarm was given that the Patapsco River was rapidly rising. By ten o'clock the river had swollen to such an extent as to create general alarm to those persons who were absent from their homes, who hastened thitter to save what they could of their property, and everywhere people who dwelt close to the banks of the river were seen making preparations to guard against the impending inundation.

Never before had the flood descended so rapidly or risen to so great a height at this place. The river rose forty feet above its ordinary level, and it had reached nearly ten feet before a droof rain fell in this neighborhood. Skirting along the rivers bank on the Baltimore and Wheeling turnpike, stood a row of large stone houses. The occupants were frequently warned of the dangerous appearance of the freehet, but trusting to their former experience, a the dangerous appearance of the freshe, but trusting to their former experience, they chose to remain yet a little longer, thinking there would be time to escape when the worst came. Within a few minutes the flood rose so rapidly that all communication was out off and the current rushed so swiftly that it was found impossible to render them any aid.

At this time the water had only reached above the lower story of the houses and no danger was apprehended if the occupants could reach the roof. This they at once proceeded to do, but the water still rose higher and higher and sped on its [frightful course with Immense velocity, and to add to the terrors of the hour huge masses of drift rubbish eame rushing upon the doomed dwellings.

The family of Dr. T. B. Owings, consisting of Mrs. Owings, six children and three servants, had gathered in the house, which was frame, was litted from its foundations and carried across the street against a stone house occupied by Mr. Fountain. Mrs. Owings and her children clambered up the roof of Fountain's house, where they thought they would be safe. A few moments after this Dr. Owings, where they thouse and the death of his wife and children, who sonk amid the week, holding their hands toward him value; imploring his help.

The side wall of Mr. Partridge's house fell and exposed to the spectures about fifteen persons, who had sought free persons, who h into the bolling surge, carrying with it every son!.

Every effort was made by the citizens to rescue those who were in peril, and quite a number were saved; but owing to the speedy work made by the flood in its learful violence, many perished within a dozen yards of the shore.

The whole of the lower part of the town was flooded, and to-day presents a deplorable spectacle—goods washed out of stores into the streets, and furniture out of houses, all lying in tangled heaps, with here and there trees, logs, stones and the debris of houses and bridges. The principal hotel, the Patapaco House, is filled to everflowing with the houseless citizens who escaped the flood. Every mill on the river is destroyed, and every bridge is washed away.

The track of the Baltimpre and Ohio

The track of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has sunk in several places.

Parties of citizens have been engaged all day along the river in dragging for the bodies of victime, and thus far but eight have been recovered. Thirty-seven persons are known to have been drowned, and six others are missing. The names of those lost are as follows:

Mrs. T. B. Owings, six children and three servants; William Patterson, his wife and five children; William Partridge, his wife and niece; Mrs. Farrow and two nieces; Mr. Mat. McCauley, cloth inspector at Granite Mill; John Reese and Carrie Reese, his daughter; Mr. Murphy will lies below the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad bridge, imbeded among the iron rods of the bridge. Mr. Gabriel, wife and child; Mr. Joseph Steel; Mr. Fonntain, wife and daughter and Mr. Snyder. The track of the Baltimore and Ohio were carried away, was built in the year 1792. The old inhabitants say that the water rose yesterday fifteen feet higher than it ever reached before. The loss in Ellicott City is estimated at over a million dollars.

Recent explorations show Northern Minnesota to be perhaps the most remarkable slate region in the world. The slate ridge is some twenty odd miles in lengt and six in width. In one place are mounds of slate covering a large extent of territory, which have the appearance of a city, there being streets, houses and towers of regular shape, the whole presenting a most singular and interesting appearance. At one point in the St. Louis river is a large island of pure, workable slate, towering above the surface of the stream at a hight of 75 feet.

THE Ohio State Journal says; "Positively no more puns will be allowed in this paper on the name of Seymour. We are not in a condition to see more of them. Any one quoting: 'There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio,' shall be dealt with in a miscellaneous manner. Any one inquiring who this C. Moore is, snall be subject to a Horation by our English contributor. Any one inquiring where the Democraty struck this seam ore shall be smelted. We don't wish to seem o'er fastidious in this matter, but contributors are warned to desist."

In a telegraph office in the City of New York, there are fifteen young ladies engaged in the duties of sending and receiving messages. On one day lately, ten of these young ladies, it is reported, sent and received 3,125 messages between S A. M. and half past 4 P. M., or an average of 314 messages each. The work, it is stated, was done well, neatly, correctly, and to their very great credit. The daily number of messages sent by this corps of ladies averages 2,200. THE reunion movement in the Pres-

THE reunion movement in the Presbyterian ismily does not meet a very cordial welcome from the Southern brethren. They seem inclined to favor only the course which devolves all the conciliation and concession on their Northern brethren. But the Evangelist remarks: "Charleston and Richmond beld out long in the late war, but even they surrendered at last. So it may be in the churches of the South."

WHEELING, WEST VA., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 29, 1868. Question-Missouri Pacific

Sr. Louis, July 28.—A letter from Ellaworth, Kansas of the 23d says the Indian question has resumed a new phase. All the tribes that were at Fort Larned have left and no one knows where they have gone. Small parties are met by persons coming in from the Plains, but they hold no communication with the whites, which is a sign they mean mischief. The opinion prevails that they have gone South with their women and children, and that they will soon be on the railroad line and routes traversed by trains with hostile purposes. Reports arrive daily of their killing people and robbing trains. Gen. Sully is still at Larned and has ordered the troops in his department to concentrate on the line of the Arkansas river. Fort Zarah will be fully garrisoned and other preparations made to meet any exigencies that may arise.

A mortgage of the Missouri Pacific Railroad for seven million dollars has been filed in the county recorder's office. This mortgage is to secure the bonds issued by the company to pay the State five millions of the purchase money for the road. Under the legislative act of last winter one million and a half of bonds known as the Dresden bonds, given some time ago to work on that part of the road west of Dresden, and the remainder to change the guage of the road so as to conform with the Kansas Pacific Railway, and place the road in complete and effective working order. The amount of purchase money will probably be paid in Missouri State bonds, which money will reduce the State debt to that amount. The mortgage is in favor of Urlah A. Murdock, Jas. Punnett and Luther C. Clark, and the bonds are to run 20 years, are payable in gold at New York, and bear six per cent interest. The stamp on the mortgage amounts to seven thousand dollars.
